

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS OVERSEE MEAT TRADE

All Meats for Export Trade, as Human Food, Must be Duly Inspected and Certified by the Proper Government Authorities before Leaving the Dominion.

The meat inspection service of the department of agriculture at Ottawa is carried on under the authority of the Meat and Canned Foods act, a measure which received the royal assent of the nation's parliament in June, 1907, and came into operation on September 24 of that year.

Presenting a content in Europe and elsewhere, especially since the recent revolution in Chicago, is arrayed very strongly against the use of human food, of any meats save those daily inspected and certified by proper governmental authority.

It was in conformity with this sentiment, and chiefly with the object of preserving our valuable export trade in bacon and similar products, that the Meat and Canned Foods act was passed.

With the view of clearing up any misunderstanding which may exist in the public mind as to the extent and scope of the legislation under which the present meat inspection service is conducted, the following explanation is given:

Before the Meat and Canned Foods act was introduced in the House of Commons by the Honorable Sir John Fisher, the minister of justice was asked for an opinion as to the power of the federal government with regard to meat inspection.

His reply was that while those powers undoubtedly warranted the Federal government in undertaking the inspection of articles exported from the Dominion or from one province to another, there was very grave doubt as to whether they would permit of a similar inspection of articles, the trade in which was confined within the boundaries of any one province.

This limitation was especially applicable to meat inspection, a subject intimately associated with public health, one of the matters which, since 1872, has been dealt with altogether by the provincial and local authorities.

Provision is made either by the Municipal act or by the Public Health act of each province, and the measures by both, for such establishments and carrying on of business as are subject to inspection, and that this legislation has, up to now, in too many cases, remained a dead letter or at best been very ineffectively enforced in no fault of the Federal authorities.

Local Meat Trade.
Further, it should be stated that the inability of any Federal department to enforce the supervision in all its ramifications, of the local meat trade in every town and village throughout the Dominion.

On the other hand, under the provisions laws above mentioned, it is quite possible for municipalities to organize, at but little cost, a thorough system of inspection of local meat, the machinery being, in many cases, already provided, and necessitating expenditure, therefore, comparatively small.

The following of the public conference on the meat inspection question might reasonably be expected as a result of the adoption by the Federal government, of a policy of inspection of meat for export and interprovincial trade, and the agitation now making itself felt in many of the larger centres of population throughout the country is therefore not surprising.

I am satisfied that once the Canadian public has become seized of the situation they will insist upon the adoption by the various municipalities of authorities throughout the country, of a much more thorough system of dealing with butchers and the meat trade generally than has hitherto been practiced.

It does not appear to me that there is any need for or likelihood of conflict. We are setting a fairly high standard, and all that is required is for the municipal authorities to adopt under the legislation now existing, regulations somewhat similar to ours, with the view of rendering unmarketable diseased or otherwise unsound meat, and thus, under municipal authority, cannot erect establishments engaged in exports or interprovincial trade.

Municipal Abattoirs.
The most important step in this direction will, it is needless to say, be the providing of public municipal abattoirs, to be conducted under inspection methods similar to those required by the Meat and Canned Foods Act, especially as regards the admission either of live animals or their carcasses.

The sooner the private slaughterhouse is abolished throughout the better for all concerned, as most of the objectionable meats placed on the market emanate from these undesirable and unsanitary places.

The trade in bone-killed, dressed carcasses was also, for similar reasons, gradually being wiped out of existence, and although the abolition of this form of meat disposal will probably cause some temporary dislocation, among farmers, matters will soon adjust themselves and the profits to the producer will be increased, although the livevers and other ill-fated utilized by the housewife will be no longer available.

The municipal abattoir is a modern and progressive institution, and there are many among us, not yet old, who can well recollect when the number of hospitals in Canada could almost be counted on the fingers, and when a proposal to erect in a situation of this kind in a small town was looked upon as indicating a sign of insanity. How many of the communities now possessing modern and up-to-date hospitals, would be satisfied to do without them?

This question will be the question of the abattoir, and if no other argument is advanced, it will be sufficient to show that Meat and Canned Goods Act than the fact that, if any argument is advanced public opinion on the great and important question of a sanitary meat supply, the world, in my opinion, fully justify its being placed on the status of a public utility.

Canadian Meat Firms.
The following establishments, which are engaged in export or interprovincial trade, are operated under the provisions of the Meat and Canned Foods Act, and all receive and export food products from such establishments have undergone a careful and thorough inspection at the hands of the officers of this branch of the department of agriculture, and are marked with the Crown and the words "Canada Approved," together with the establishment numbers:

28—System of inspection.

There are at present employed in these establishments 68 veterinary inspectors, all of whom have received a special training in meat inspection and have passed a searching examination as to their qualifications. There are also 11 lay inspectors, whose duties comprise the supervision of the marking and shipment of goods.

The inspection conducted in each of these establishments is as follows:

All animals for slaughter are examined by a veterinary inspector, the premises before they are allowed to enter the killing floor. All animals found to be diseased, or showing symptoms of any kind, are tagged and held back until the close of the day's kill, when they are slaughtered separately.

The inspector makes a thorough examination of the carcass and of all organs of every animal as it is killed. If these are found healthy, the stamped seal of inspection is placed on the carcass, and the words "Canada Approved," as also the establishment number.

Any meats found in whole or in part to be diseased, or from other causes unfit for food, are immediately marked with a "condemned" tag.

Any carcasses, in regard to the condition of which there is cause for doubt, is marked "Held," and set apart for further examination, at the discretion of the inspector. Carcasses which are at any time found to have undergone such deterioration as to unfit them for human food, are tagged with the name of the public health officer under the supervision of an inspector.

A summary of the reports of condemnation made by our inspectors during the last fiscal year, shows a total of 3,926 carcasses, 20,501 parts, or also 20,222 pounds of meat, is condemned as unfit for human food. This should demonstrate effectually the necessity which actually exists for a thorough system of meat inspection.

When it is remembered that these establishments under inspection handle only animals of the best class procurable, the conditions which exist in the ordinary private slaughterhouse, conducted without inspection or official supervision of any kind, may readily be imagined.

Boards of Health and municipal authorities have been too long neglectful of the necessity for intelligent action in the matter of meat inspection.

It is the duty of every man to see that his family, as well as his neighbors, are not exposed to the danger of disease and death by the sale of meat from establishments under Federal inspection.

It is secured only by the establishment of a municipal abattoir, conducted under the constant supervision of a skilled professional inspector.

Hon. W. S. Fielding Speaks at Political Picnic.

Yarmouth, N.S., Sept. 8.—The first of the series of political picnics to be held throughout Nova Scotia took place here yesterday.

Hon. Mr. Fielding said he might refer to a matter of national interest. "We have been engaged hitherto in trying to make a name for ourselves. The time has now come when Great Britain and Ireland are looking to the great colonial states making them, in proportion to their strength and ability, to take up the question of their own defence."

"The New Zealand government offered a Dreadnought, but this has not seemed the best thing to do. Our naval affairs we want to keep control of, as we have done our military affairs, and if we are to have a naval service, Canada must control it."

"We are going to build warships and we must do so on a modern scale, directed and controlled by experienced men, and we wish to have a Canadian fleet organized that in a moment of emergency can be converted into an imperial fleet. At present he would not say much about the deliberations at the imperial defence conference, but was satisfied when this result was disclosed it would be found consistent with the Canadian spirit, mingled with the imperial."

This premier delivered an address in which he outlined the record policy of the Conservative party of the province.

Building Stone. The river banks at Entwistle are of solid sandstone, much of which is of excellent quality for building purposes. It is 130 miles nearer Edmonton than the present source of supply. Still more industries. Still more money. Still more business.

These are only a few of the things that will make Entwistle a sure investment, and a quick money maker.

There is no better or surer investment today than G.T.P. townships that have big futures. This is one of the best.
